COUNCIL PLANS CAMPAIGN FOR VOTE ON BONDS

Legislators to Cite City Hall-Fire Station Need.

SEEK $200,000

Two Proposals go on Ballots for Nov. 6.

Plans for a campaign in behalf of the proposed city hall and fire station bond issues, which will be submitted to the electorate at the general election on Tuesday, November 6, will be mapped out within the next week, councilmen said today.

The legislators have submitted separate proposals on the two suggested improvements. One calls for a $160,000 bond issue to erect a city hall, which will house the municipal court, police department, council chamber and offices for the mayor, auditor, treasurer and other city officials and water works and health departments. The other proposition provides for a $40,000 bond issue for a new downtown fire station.

HOOVER PLANS TO "SPEAK HIS MIND" ON WATER POWER SUBJECT

G. O. P. Nominee to Make Address During October.

"WHISPERS" HIT Candidate's Associates Angered by Gov. Smith's Tactics.

LORAIN, O., Sept. 24.—Formal endorsement of the presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover, and opposition to Gov. Smith, were recorded by the Northeast Ohio Methodist Episcopal church conference in a resolution adopted by the approximately 500 pastors in attendance. There were only two dissenting votes, according to reports.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—In keeping with his purpose to conduct an affirmative campaign, Herbert Hoover will make a public address during October on the subject of governmental regulation of water and public utilities, it was reported reliably here today at his headquarters.

The Republican nominee will "speak his mind" on this issue, it was said, because he feels the public has a right to know his views and not in any sense as a reply to the attack of Governor Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic rival. Hoover will maintain his stand that his campaign must be conducted on a constructive basis, absolutely devoid of personalities. For this reason, he will make no reply now to Smith's Denver speech.

Hoover's associates, however, were angered by Governor Smith's tactics. "Give Lie" To Whispers. "Governor Smith is living in a glass house," said one Hoover leader. "He attacks Hoover because two government employees, much underpaid, accepted more lucrative posts in private business. The governor would do well to tell the people why he named a director of the General Motors company as his campaign manager and why the chairman of the board of the General Electric company and the president of the Montana Power company are among the heaviest contributors to his campaign fund. These two concerns are the heart and soul of the power trust."

The Hoover leaders meanwhile "gave the lie" to one of the whispers being circulated against the Republican nominee, after Senator William C. Bruce (D.) of Maryland gave it publicity in a speech Saturday night. Bruce said he heard that Hoover and Clarence Darrow had had "numerous drinks of liquor" together.

"Senator Bruce is simply giving circulation to slander," commented George Akerson, Hoover's assistant. "Mr. Hoover does not know Mr. Darrow and it is a falsehood to say they had drinks together."

With Darrow also issuing a denial of the charge, it was said at Hoover's headquarters that the Republican nominee has not touched liquor since the Prohibition law went into effect. As explained six weeks ago the International News Service, Hoover is a personal dry and Mrs. Hoover a life-long ardent prohibitionist.

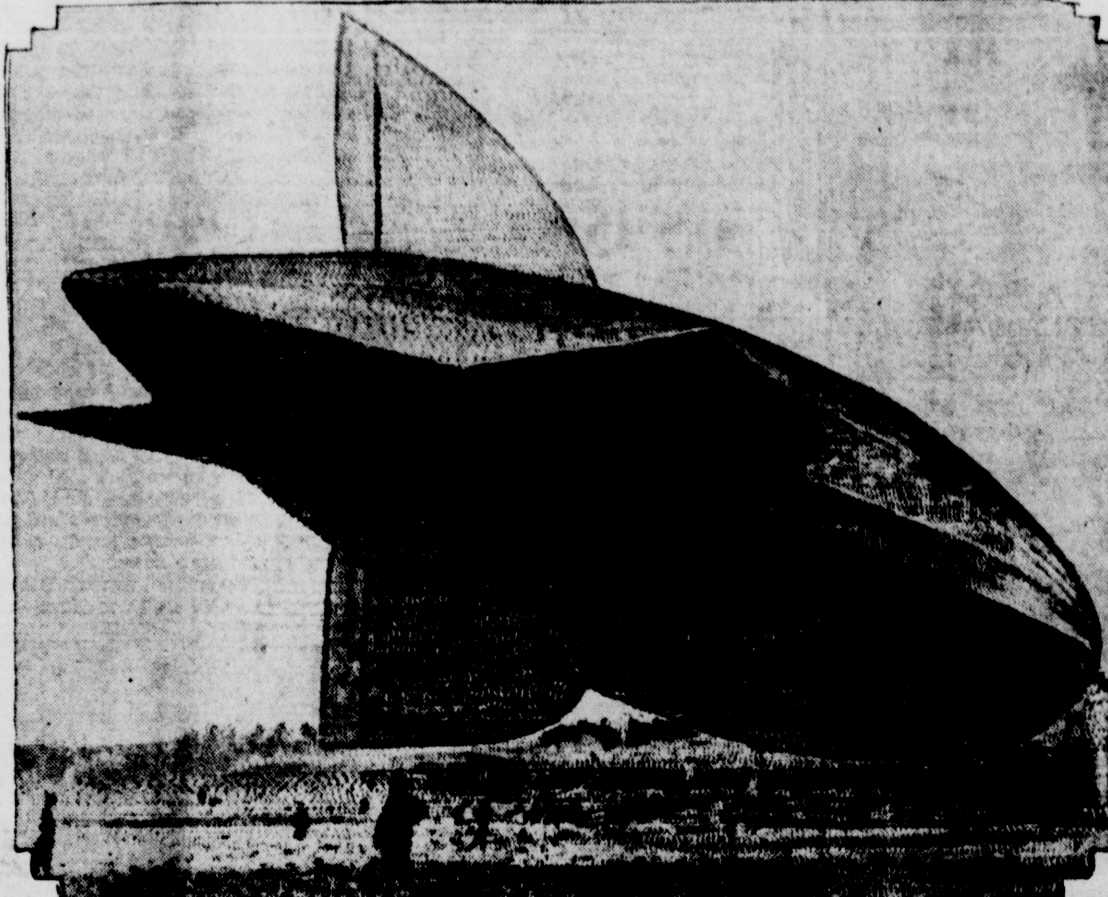

Chairman Hubert Work meanwhile issued a statement attacking Smith for his Denver speech. Work declared Smith gave a "public exhibit of his facility to distort, misrepresent and reverse the meaning of public statements made by Mr. Hoover through deleting and lifting and isolating phrases from the context."

MOOSE TO HEAR WAR VET-HIKER

James O'Connor to Speak at Dinner Tonight.

Y., who has a record of hiking 10,000 miles across the continent without receiving a "hit" from motorists, will be one of the speakers at 8 o'clock tonight at the dinner in the Moose temple, Fourth and Washington streets. The hiker, who is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, has visited the children's homes at Mooseheart, Ill., and Eaton Rapids, Mich., and the home for aged veterans in Florida. O'Connor, who saw service in the Philippines, is returning to his home. He is accompanied by "Spike," an English bulldog. He pays his own way on a pension received from the government.

G. O. P. LEADER HITS BIGOTS IN CAMPAIGN TALK

Charles D. Hilles Repudiates Gov. Smith's Charges.

NEW YORK SPEECH

Predicts Eastern States Will be in Hoover Column.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—"We do not desire the support of bigots who put creed before country."

This was the repudiation of Republican National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles of New York today to charges in Governor Smith's Oklahoma City speech that Republican managers were encouraging a campaign attacking the Democratic nominee on religious grounds.

Hilles denounced the religious campaign in an address before the Women's National Republican club. "Let us in this campaign consider solely those issues which concern the welfare of the country," he said. "No friend of the republic will introduce into the campaign a word of intolerance toward a religious sect."

Hilles declared that the Democratic attempt to divert public attention from the fundamental economic issues of prosperity, tariff and equitable taxes with the "smoke screen of prohibition" had been unsuccessful and that as a result the important eastern seaboard group—New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Delaware—would be found safely in the Hoover column in November.

SMITH "MODESTY" HIT BY MOSES

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 24.—"Scrutiny of the partial text of the candidate's Denver speech, as printed in New England newspapers, reveals his customary modesty; the first personal pronoun appearing only 44 times," declared United States Senator H. Moses, vice chairman of the Republican eastern advisory committee, commenting on Governor Alfred E. Smith's speech in Colorado.

Senator Moses referred to the Democratic presidential nominee as "Mr. Facing-Both-Ways" who "descended from his eleven-car million-dollar special train to spread light and learning in those sections of the country which are unaccustomed to the effulgence of the brown derby."

RURAL WOMAN STARTS FUND FOR PATTERSON INSTITUTION

West Virginia Ready to Aid in Drive for Furniture.

URGES ACTION

Ready to Contribute Bed, Dresser and Rug Too.

Marking the first move to save the Mary A. Patterson Memorial Christian home, East Fourth street, for the purpose it was built, a New Cumberland, W. Va., woman today offered to contribute $1,000 as well as several articles of furniture to the Mary A. Patterson Memorial Christian Home association.

Answers "Working Girl" The offer, prompted by a letter, signed, "Working Girl," which was published last week, was made in a communication addressed to The Review by the woman, who signed herself, "Rural Reader of West Virginia." The name of the writer, which, presumably, was to be kept secret, was given as evidence of good faith.

The proposal is a forerunner of a movement which is expected to be launched here to furnish the home, erected at a cost of $307,000 by the late Monroe Patterson, pottery and foundry owner. The Patterson will make no provision for furnishing the institution.

Under a Columbus county common pleas court ruling, made last week by Judge W. F. Lones, the building will revert to the Patterson heirs unless the home association occupies it on or before January 1.

Rural Reader's Letter. "Rural Reader's Letter to The Review follows:

"In reply to 'Working Girl's' appeal in your issue of the 20th, for contributions to help furnish The Mary A. Patterson Memorial home, please tell me I will give one oak bedroom suite of double bed, cheval dresser and wash stand; also, one green velvet rug, size 11x12 feet, one extension dining table, with 8 chairs—all in fairly good condition. Will also give $1,000 to help with other furnishings.

"She is right. There is no need of furnishing all the home at once. Get some things into it and occupy it as soon as possible, so that it cannot be sold. Such a home is an imperative need in East Liverpool, there being no W. Y. C. A. to take care of girls. Here is hoping a fine home can be saved for the purpose it was built.

SMITH STREET JOB ON CITY'S FALL PROGRAM

Councilmen Expected to Act at Session Oct. 1.

DELAY EXPLAINED

Proposed Outlet for Youngstown Road Traffic.

Smith street, connecting link between Dresden and Lincoln avenue and proposed as an outlet for increased traffic when the Youngstown-East Liverpool highway is completed, will be improved, at least partially, this fall, it was predicted today by councilmen.

Delay in legislation for the proposed program, introduced at the lawmakers' session last week, was prompted by a difference of opinion among councilmen as to the extent of the work to be done this year. One proposal before the legislators provides for the Green Lane-Lincoln avenue section of the job, while another authorizes completion of the entire stretch.

Definite decision on the fall program is expected to be reached at the next councilmanic session which is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 1.

In the meantime, work on the Dresden avenue section of the Youngstown road, the contract for which was awarded by the county, is being rushed. Delay on this job, it was pointed out today, is not attributable to council. The legislators appropriated funds for the municipality's share of the work last March.

Indications today were the Dresden avenue job will be completed on or about Oct. 20.

CRUZE PICTURE AMERICAN HIT

Small time vaudeville leading to big time love and drama.

That in a sentence is "Excess Baggage," one of the most interesting and successful pictures of the year which opened a four-day engagement at the American theater today.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has done everything humanly possible to insure this production of being great screen entertainment—and they have succeeded to the limit of their desires. The picture is adapted by Frances Marion, one of the best known scenarists, from the stage play by John McGowan, which scored a sensational success all over the country.

It was given to James Cruze, of "Covered Wagon" fame to direct and he chose William Haines for the star. Haines is today considered the most human personality on the screen.

For a supporting cast, M.G.M. selected Ricardo Cortez (the lead in "Helen of Troy"), Kathleen Clifford, formerly a very well known featured player, Cyril Chadwick, the noted English actor, Neely Edwards, a former Orpheum headliner, and others of nearly equal note.

The screen story is remarkably well knit and never flags in interest from start to finish.

The plot is based on a small-time vaudeville troupe where Haines as Eddie Kane marries Josephine Dunn (a real actress by the way). The wife finds herself to be merely "Excess Baggage" in her husband's act and when she is given the opportunity for screen success takes advantage of it.

Without her, Kane finds that he can no longer do his dangerous act which was just to earn him fame and fortune on the big time and he, in his turn, becomes "Excess Baggage." A year later both parties meet in New York City and work out their problem in an exciting and novel manner.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness,

LARGE POTATO CROP EXPECTED

Report for September Shows no Change Over August.

September outlook for crop production in the four Panhandle counties shows conditions unchanged compared with August. The report, based on averages filed by farmers in Hancock, Brooke, Ohio and Marshall counties, was made public by the state agricultural department.

The weather conditions since August 1 have been favorable for the growth of crops but somewhat unfavorable for the harvesting of hay and small grains, due to the excessive rainfall.

The composite condition of all crops of the district shows a slight improvement. Potatoes continue to show that the crop will be large this year. The combined average for the Panhandle counties is 87 per cent in comparison with 76 per cent for the five year average.

The corn harvest will also show a slight increase over the average according to present indications. The average for the present time is 81 per cent for the five years.

Oats is expected to show a slight decrease from the five year average. At the present time this grain is reported at 83 per cent in comparison with 84 per cent the five year average.

The apple harvest will be the lowest it has been in a number of years. The average for the fruit was reported as 27 per cent, while the five year average is 49 per cent.

The average for pasture in the Panhandle was reported as 90 per cent. This is a decrease over the five year average of 84 per cent.

The report of crop production outlook in the four counties includes:

Brooke County. Corn as 75 per cent and the five year average of 78 per cent; oats as 82 per cent and the five year average of 73 per cent; potatoes reported as 83 per cent and average as 80 per cent; apples as 30 per cent, with average of 49 per cent; pasture as 90 per cent and five year average of 84 per cent.

Hancock County. Corn as 85 per cent and average of 79 per cent; oats as 85 per cent and average of 87 per cent; potatoes as 80 per cent and average as 80 per cent; apples as 40 per cent and average of 53 per cent and pasture as 90 per cent and average of 86 per cent.

Marshall County. Corn as 84 per cent and average of 82 per cent; oats as 83 per cent and average of 85 per cent; potatoes as 93 per cent and average of 75 per cent; apples as 20 per cent and average of 44 per cent, and pasture as 93 per cent and average of 78 per cent.

Ohio County. Corn as 80 per cent and average of 83 per cent; oats at 85 per cent and average of 83 per cent; potatoes at 90 per cent and average of 68 per cent; apples as 20 per cent and average of 50 per cent and pasture at 90 per cent and average of 88 per cent.

The condition of the state as a whole remains with but little change over the August outlook. Corn, sweet potatoes, tobacco, sorghum cane and pasture show slight improvements over last month. Irish potatoes remained unchanged and oats, buckwheat and hay show slight decreases in condition.

Two Bond Issues

Thanks to the efforts of city council, East Liverpool voters will be given an opportunity to pass judgment upon city hall and fire station questions at the general election on Tuesday, November 6.

Two proposed bond issues, one for $160,000 for the municipal building and another for $40,000 for a building to house the city's fire fighting equipment, will be given places on the ballots. Both propositions have been certified to the election supervisors following the adoption of the necessary resolutions by the municipal legislators.

The need of the two structures is admitted. The building at Third and Market streets, now housing the offices of the mayor, auditor and police department and jail, is antiquated as well as inadequate. The city pays rent for the municipal courtroom, council chamber and water works office.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, in a recent survey, condemned the St. Clair avenue-Broadway building which is now used as a Central fire station and urged the erection of a new structure.

Under the plan proposed by council, subject to approval of the electorate, the new city hall, if sanctioned, will be erected on the city-owned lot in Sixth street, while the fire station will be placed on the site of the present building.

Considered from all viewpoints, not to mention the saving in money now expended for rent for quarters for municipal offices, the city hall and fire station propositions should prove good investments. Both bond issues should be approved.

Constitution 141 Years Old

Although last week marked the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of the ratification of the fundamental law of the land, celebration of Constitution week in East Liverpool was postponed until this week, when Harry C. Atwood, Chicago lawyer, writer and authority on the basic charter, will visit here Thursday. Atwood will deliver three addresses, the first at a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Lions clubs at noon and two others in the high school auditorium.

It was on September 11, 1786, that delegates from five states attended the constitution convention at Annapolis, and on September 17, 1786, the completed constitution was present for signature by the delegates.

For nearly a century and a half stormy waves have beaten against the solid rock—the charter of American liberty and the guarantee of American rights. Yet today it is far stronger than the day it was signed and became the law of the land.

Today, despite sneering criticisms and numerous attempts to belittle the authors of that immortal document, the constitution still stands as a proper object of American veneration.

The men who drafted the constitution took experience as an instructive monitor. Madison and his associates knew that there was a pointed question confronting the delegates to the constitutional convention. That question was: "What is the situation of the weak as compared with the strong, in those stages of civilization in which the violence of individuals is least controlled by an efficient government?"

Madison met the challenge. He said: The heroic period of ancient Greece, the feudal licentiousness of the middle ages in Europe, the existing condition of the American savages, answer this question. Give to the general government sufficient energy and permanency.

But even after that the convention wrangled for days until Ben Franklin had the wisdom to remind his colleagues that "in this situation of the assembly, groping as it were in the dark to find political truth, and scarcely able to distinguish it when presented to us, we have not hitherto once thought of humbly applying to the Father of Lights, to illuminate our understanding. If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid?"

At that suggestion the delegates knelt in prayer. From that moment forward the convention made wonderful progress, and out of their deliberations the constitution emerged. It was a charter of liberty, granted from the very hands of God. It gave guarantees of freedom of conscience and of worship, freedom of speech and of the press, the rights of the people to be secure in their houses, persons, properties and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures. That document has been expanded to grant equality to all men and women, and to make neither race, color nor previous condition of servitude a bar to the right of franchise.

Ancient Benefactors.

The Lotus land of the South Pacific is generally regarded as a paradise filled by Nature with blessed gifts for an undeserving race. The native have been supposed always to have taken their ease there, as our first parents did in Eden.

It is not true, says Dr. Herbert E. Gregory, director of the Polynesian museum at Honolulu. He has investigated the botanical life of the various groups of South Sea islands, including Hawaii, and concludes that those areas were once barren in comparison with their present luxuriant vegetation.

The first visitors to the Hawaiian Islands, he says, faced great hardships, from hunger and the peril of strange seas. But like true pioneers, instead of giving up, they labored to make the forbidding lands fruitful. They traveled thousands of miles in outrigger canoes, carrying with them such fruits as the banana, the breadfruit, the coconut and the vegetables that are now found here. They and succeeding pioneers have brought with them the fruits and vegetables that now grow in profusion in the South Seas and Hawaii.

Has this not been true everywhere? The beginnings of most of the necessities and comforts of mankind are lost in the prehistoric past. But the chances are that wherever we find a valuable food or material utilized by man, some individual or tribe long ago wrested that from wild nature, carried it far and tended it laboriously, to make it serve human ends. Our greatest benefactors are unknown, and all the past have served the present, as we serve the future.

Many a man's romantic enthusiasm for a clever woman has been punctured by the stab of her pointed wit.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 24.—The map of the United States has shrunk. This is not due to the rainy summer, but to the growth of commercial aviation. Measured in terms of railway transportation time it compares to the size of the State of Texas. Computed in terms of the travel of the times, New York is more than twice as near to San Francisco as the site of Washington was to Philadelphia in the days when American government was emerging from the Colonial.

Air mail planes which fly over 35 states and stop in 102 cities are covering 25,000 miles daily. It is remarkable that this one class of air transportation has such a record in view of the fact that 10 years ago when carrying mail through the air was something new there was only a daily flight of 218 miles within two station stops.

In spite of the fact that the government does not subsidize mail lines, there are now nine air mail contractors and postage for this service has been reduced. Not including express, between five and seven tons of letters and parcels are transported in the air daily.

As the air mail business increases it is observed that the passenger service does likewise. Many companies with the air mail as a nucleus branch out into the job of carrying passengers. However, these are seven non-mail operators who fly planes 5650 miles every day.

While the air mail service is the most considerable aviation enterprise in the United States, there is in addition a great deal of private flying both for business purposes and sport. With the growth of this latter practice it may be anticipated that before long the continent of North America will possess the most extensive system of air communication in the world.

There is no end to the variety of things shipped via the air. Perhaps because emergencies can be met by this service which averages 100 miles an hour, unusual articles find their way into the mail sacks. When a threshing machine breaks down it is possible to rush a new part and save wasting the time of an idle crew. By the air shipment of news reels, events are shown to moving picture audiences almost as soon as they have happened. Manufacturers at a distance deliver their products as quickly as nearby competitors. Negotiable securities and bills of lading swell the air mail bags.

According to figures which have been recently compiled film companies are the best patrons of the air express. Others who use it are named in order: banks, bond houses, jewelers, and advertising agencies. The agencies use it for distributing copy for national campaigns. It is estimated that airplanes carry $24,000,000 in negotiable securities to Wall Street daily.

Planes cooperating with ships save 24 hours' time in mail delivery. If ship-to-shore and transcontinental planes are used, mail and express parcels can be sent from France and England to California in less than a week. Railroads are already advertising combination rail and air journeys that cut hours off the old scheduled time.

There will be even greater development in air mail and passenger operations, for already new routes are authorized which will permit flying mileage to total 10,000,000 during the next year. Emulating the system of the radio, passenger plane operators are planning trans-continental hook-ups for the future. In addition, the post office has arranged for air mail service to Canada, Mexico, and the countries between Key West and the Panama canal.

Complete returns for air transport in Europe during 1927 are not yet available, but those compiled show that Germany still holds a commanding lead in the development of commercial flying. In view of the short life of the German air transport system the progress made is amazing. During the year that country had 14,500 miles of air routes, flew 6,189,000 miles, and carried 151,091 passengers, 2289 tons of freight, and 813 tons of mail.

France now controls almost 9,000 miles of air routes on which in 1927 4,272,000 miles were flown and 20,110 passengers were carried. On the Russian and Italian airways more than 800,000 miles were flown in each case. The Italians carrying 12,182 passengers and the Russians about 3700. Detailed figures for Russia are not obtainable. Sweden, Poland, Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, and Belgium all maintain air services. Sweden, although controlling only 665 miles of air routes, carried 13,500 passengers over its territory last year.

Owing to a different method of computation, it is difficult to compare the record made by British air transport companies with those of other countries. However, it is shown that more than 4,000,000 passenger miles were flown and almost half a million tons of mail, the latter including both merchandise and mail. Although the advance over previous years is regarded as disappointingly small, the progress made is steady. Its most satisfactory feature being that it marks a definite approach to more economical operation. The ratio of payload to total weight is rising.

Questions And Answers

By Frederick J. Haskin

Q. Is Bermuda going to have an electric railroad? L. J. S.

A. The Railway Gazette says that a prospectus has recently been issued in connection with Bermuda Traction Limited, which company has been formed to build and operate a railway in the main island of the Bermudas, which is about 24 miles long. Motor transport is legally prohibited in the Bermudas, and the railway will thus provide the only means of mechanical transport for a resident population of 32,000 and large numbers of tourists. The railway will extend the full length of the island, and will connect the three principal towns of Hamilton, Somerset, and St. Georges. Sir John Wolfe Barry and Partners are the consulting engineers.

Q. Is Hoover or Curtis a Mason? C. McG.

A. Neither Herbert Hoover nor Charles Curtis is a Mason.

Q. What proportion of the Army and Navy Chaplains are Catholic? W. B. N.

A. About 18 per cent of the chaplains in the Army and 20 per cent in the Navy are Catholic.

Q. What are the Montrose Pits? C. E.

A. These are deep places in the sea near Montrose, Scotland. Great numbers of codfish are caught here.

Q. What is Belleek porcelain? B. A. C.

A. It is an extremely thin ware, decorated with a pearly luster laid over the glaze suggesting the interior of shells. It derived its name from Belleek, Ireland, where it was originally made.

At first glance it might be mistaken for a bathing suit, but it is more abbreviated if anything. It is very thin to allow the wearer to derive the full benefit of sun and air. All have very low necks and a corsage for adornment, since a flower or so is the only addition their diminitiveness allows. The lining of the beach wrap is supposed to match the suit, and large hats, of course, complete the outfit. Since a beach wrap would interfere with Rosalie's trotting she has probably left it on a convenient rock.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Diary of a modern Peppys: Back again in the city and to a dress rehearsal of a musical show and to a Park Avenue restaurant with my wife, where a careless waiter upset cream on a new dress and the day utterly spoiled for both of us.

Nor do I care for the attitude of many restaurants when an accident of this sort happens, it being a custom to consider it no especial concern of theirs. The city in a turmoil of heat and all afternoon at my labour and washing the dog.

In the evening to Ben Riley's fun for dinner with Karl Kitchen on the pretty open terrace and helpen thrice to the most savory frog legs I ever tasted and Billy Seaman there with, as usual, a beautiful lady. Home in the bright glamour of the cool moon and to bed.

A theatrical dress rehearsal is a fountain of excitement. The fate of many players is in the balance, for afterward comes the first weeding out process. To performers a dress rehearsal is often of more consequence than a first night.

The chorus girl who stumbles, sings a sour note, or the small part performer who fumbles a line may find themselves "at liberty." While not always true, the producer usually knows after a dress rehearsal whether or not he has a show that will click. A dress rehearsal audience is composed chiefly of the playwright, the costumers, scouts from theatrical agencies, relatives of the principals and a few friends of the producer. It may run all day or from dusk until daylight.

Proceedings are often stopped by a skycrout outburst of hysterics on the part of players cracking under the strain. The director and producer pace the aisles in the snarling attitude of sore-footed heras. Their voices become whispers and their nerves taut as fiddle strings. The expert can judge from a dress rehearsal the true value of a show. To the casual observer it looks a hopeless fizzle. Following a dress rehearsal a show goes to Atlantic City or Stamford, unless it opens "cold" on Broadway, for a week's tryout and there is whipped into shape and the absurdities ironed out so it comes back to New York for the premier a fairly smooth performance.

A dress rehearsal reveals odd pattern of the theatre. Such terms, for instance, as "flood the back-drop," "give her a baby spot," "close with a black out," and "drop the border." The exalted position of the star is shown, too. He or she is the only member of the cast permitted to go through the dress performance in ordinary makeup. If a song is to be sung, the star merely hums a few bars and lets it go at that. The director modulates his voice addressing the great person and prefixes it with a "Mister" or "Miss." Chorus men are addressed as "Hey, you!" and chorus ladies merely by last names.

The gay irresponsibility of the chorus girl is a constant wonder to those inclined to consider life as something with a Big Purpose. She often walks out of the theatre in a pique knowing perfectly well she has a long overdue hotel bill and faces another dreary quest for work. That night she is likely to be found the life of the party in a supper club.

"You have never permitted New York," writes a lady in Seattle, "to spoil your sense of values. You can see the worthwhile in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Reno. You have a good head on your shoulders. Thanks for the trade last. But there are many who claim there are better heads on umbrellas.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

It is probable you will never be arrested. You may never serve on jury. But one thing is almost as certain as the life itself, and that is, that you have some illnesses.

The average person is sick on an average of about one every year. This is the conclusion of all health authorities who have made a study of the "incidence of disease," the prevalence of disease.

Not long ago I saw some figures put out by a government agency. These figures were founded on a survey made to determine the numbers and types of illness which people have.

A small inland city was chosen. This was selected because it was regarded as fairly representative of climate, industrial occupation, racial stock and general sanitation. Twice a month, for about two and a half years, every house in town was visited to determine the present and past state of health of each member of the family.

The survey revealed on the average 1,650 cases annually of sickness for every 1,000 of the population. Of these illnesses 40 per cent were severe enough to put the victim to bed.

What do you suppose was the most common ailment? This survey revealed what all students of disease know, that colds and bronchitis come first in the list.

These are what we call the "respiratory diseases," diseases of the breathing organs. They are responsible, the world over, for most of influenza, grippe and pneumonia, the respiratory diseases would account for almost 60 per cent of our disabilities.

What can we do to reduce the tremendous economic loss and the misery caused by colds and bronchitis? Can we actually control or, at least, lessen the incidence of these diseases?

There are some things we can do to escape colds. We can avoid certain practices which are among the causes of these too common ailments.

Colds, influenza and the resulting bronchitis are hand-conveyed disease. Contaminated moisture from the nose and mouth of one person reaches his hands and is passed to the hand of another. The second person rubs his nose or puts his fingers in his own mouth, thus carrying the unfriendly germs, which are eager to originate another cold.

The importance of clean hands—frequent cleansing of the hands with soap and water—cannot be overlooked. If you are under the necessity of contact with a person who has a cold, you must avoid getting the moisture from his breathing machinery, either out of the air or through the medium of the hands.

Never eat or go to bed without thorough washing of hands, face and entrance to the nostrils. A little care in this one of several matters will save you lots of colds.

Accounting To The Public.

The very interesting account of their stewardship by Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican campaign committee, and his associates, Mrs. Hirt, J. Franklin Fort, James B. Reynolds and former Governor Henry J. Allen, over the radio on Friday night revealed a great change in practical politics. Imagine Mark Hanna or William C. Whitney taking the public into his confidence as to the methods of a campaign. In those days back in the nineties the conduct of a campaign was nobody's business except those immediately concerned. Today it is everybody's business.

It is all for the best. Healthy plants grow in the sunlight. Public information means public confidence. And inevitably candid talks by the chairman, vice chairman, secretary, assistant treasurer and manager of publicity of the Republican campaign committee to millions of listeners give a sense of participation by the public that spells a new day in politics.

We are getting to be more of a democracy, with a small "d," than ever before. The channels of information and legitimate propaganda are almost infinite. A man or woman has only to keep his or her eyes and ears open to be well informed. All depends on the ocular and aural receptivity of the voter.—Cincinnati Times Star.

Live and Let Live.

You want to be considered tolerant where the opinion of others is concerned. Yet whenever a thought is advanced which does not coincide with your ideas, your lip curls into a sneer.

Not an open and above-board sneer but an overt tilting of the sneering muscles that you think is unobserved. You have held this attitude toward others' opinions for so long that even in repose your face shows the lines which seem to jeer.

You are surprised that anyone should accuse you of such thoughts. But it would take many years of the opposite sort of thinking to undo what you have drawn in your own face.

Intolerance is the meanest sort of habit. Intolerance is the highest-hatted conceit.

Intolerance shows an unlimited egoism. Live and let live, is what you ought to get into your soul.

If you want others to respect your honesty and opinion, respect others. You may not agree with others but you can at least concede the right of others to differ with you and still be within the pale as good American citizens.

Gas On Stomach Is Dangerous

Gas, pain, bloating and sourness after eating almost always mean "too much acid" in the stomach. The condition is dangerous. Acid irritates the stomach lining and may lead to ulcers. Gas forms and presses against the heart. The stomach needs an alkaline. Bisurated Magnesia—powder or tablets—is the ideal method of getting safe, quick, lasting relief. It neutralizes the excess acid, stops the pain and sourness. Food digests naturally. It must give prompt relief or money back say Mathews Med. Winter Building Safe With Citizen's Lumber

Winter building may be done with just as much effectiveness and good results as summer construction work if materials, such as obtained from the Citizens' Lumber company are of the required quality, and supervision is up to standard.

"Winter construction has not the hazards generally associated with such work and when all factors are taken into consideration by the builder, there are no hazards and the work proceeds on the proper schedule and with all due regard to the extreme cold, without any undue difficulty," say builders. "In fact, a house built in the cold period will generally show fewer defects than one built in warm weather. It is now a recognized fact that the very best of woods now obtainable contain a certain amount of moisture and when used in the open season absorb more. In winter, the builder is forced to maintain heat night and day in the building from time of inclosure until completion, and over a period of several months this heat effectively dries out all moisture in the wood, from the heaviest timbers to the smallest molding, reducing likelihood of future shrinkage.

"The actual cost of work in winter is not any greater than the same work erected in summer. To put it plainly, the men work in cold weather to keep warm. Winter work is harder on the "boss" than on the workman and that is possibly why in the past it has been the custom to close down in winter; but now we see construction work carried on as a continuous operation.

The Citizens' Lumber company, located at Stop 54 on the Y. & O., is ready to serve builders of the district at any time in any needed materials.

"WINGS" EPIC OF THE AIR OPENS AT CERAMIC TONIGHT

Scene from "Wings", Paramount's Aviation Spectacle

How it feels to go soaring at blinding speed thousands of feet above the earth, what battles to the death in the air mean to the cavaliers of the sky, all these and more will be revealed to the public when "Wings," Paramount's epic of the American air service in the war, has its premiere at the Ceramic theatre tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday.

FLORIDA STORM DEAD ESTIMATE IS NOW 2,200

Red Cross Checks Casualty Lists of Small Towns.

FARM ZONES HIT Four Hundred Bodies Found in Pelican Bay Hamlet.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 24.—With estimates of Florida's hurricane dead ranging from 1,000 to

2,200, Red Cross officials today were checking the casualty lists of small towns along the shore of Lake Okechobee in the flooded Everglades section.

Howard W. Selby, Palm Beach county Red Cross chairman, boosted the total death list to 2,200 last night after receiving a report from O. C. Geiger, who had just made a complete survey of the storm and flood area.

Geiger estimates 700 white and 1,500 negroes dead. He said the loss to poultry and live stock would be 98 per cent.

Within the last 48 hours, 400 bodies have been found at the hamlet of Pelican Bay and other inhabitants of the town are missing.

Previous to the discovery of these bodies, Governor John Martin estimated the total loss of life in the state at 1,500.

With the Kissimmee river pouring water into Lake Okechobee and the lake over its dykes, there is a menace of a new flood. This condition is handicapping relief workers, who must use boats to traverse most of the distance between this city and the lake towns.

Meanwhile the work of reconstruction proceeded apace in the coast towns. Winter residents are arriving by the score to rebuild their homes. In addition there are hundreds of sightseers from all parts of the state. Florida is looking forward to the tourist season and it is working at top speed to put her house in order.

Relief work in this section of the state will consume another week at least, it is estimated.

50 ARE MISSING Wooden Balconies Like Tinder as Flames Spread.

MADRID, Sept. 24.—The death toll in Madrid's traffic theater fire was increased to 120 while the large number of seriously injured threatened hourly to push it still higher. There were 370 persons under treatment in hospitals and private homes.

MADRID, Sept. 24.—Police today estimated that at least 100 persons perished in the fire which destroyed the Novedades theater, one of the largest and most popular in this city, during a performance last night.

Fifty bodies, charred and burned beyond recognition, have been recovered but at least 50 persons are missing and are believed to have perished. Police, firemen and government troops continued to search the mouldering ruins for additional victims today.

The fire started upon the stage during an intermission. To prevent an immediate panic, the orchestra bravely continued to play but an explosion followed which killed several of the musicians.

In five minutes, the whole building was a roaring inferno. The theater, an old-fashioned affair having six wooden balconies, was like tinder to the flames.

In the mad rush toward the few exits, many fell or were pushed from the balconies to the orchestra below. Many children were in the balconies.

In the midst of the stampede, the main entrance collapsed, trapping hundreds still inside the theater.

WELLSVILLE, O., Sept. 24.—Organization of Wellsville's community Hallowe'en celebration committee which will work out plans for an observance similar to that staged last fall, will be perfected at a meeting to be held Wednesday night, at 7 o'clock in council chamber, city hall building.

Officers and committee chairman probably will be selected at the meeting.

M. K. Duty at present is president of the association; George B. Imbrie, service-safety director, secretary; and Fred Eckfeld, treasurer.

Whether Duty will be able to handle the work of his office again is doubtful inasmuch as he is working on a contract at Jewett and possibly will not complete it before the latter part of October.

With little more than a month remaining, it will be necessary for the officers and committee members to begin work immediately.

INVESTIGATE BRIDGE PLAN

County Commissioners Order Survey Made.

Indicating that the county is interested in the Wellsville 16-inch pipe line from the municipal reservoir in Little Yellow creek, at the second mill dam, commissioners have requested the county surveyor's office to investigate the project as soon as possible.

It is understood there is a possibility that a bridge that has been in use elsewhere in the county may be transferred to the second mill dam.

The entire dam was washed out at this point by the storm that broke the water supply main in several places.

The surveyor's office will report back to the commissioners on its investigation.

Commander Byrd Chooses MAYTAGS for South Pole Expedition

ONE of the many distinguished honors that have come to the Maytag Aluminum Washer is the selection of Maytags for the Byrd South Pole Expedition.

Not only the success of this great pioneering adventure, but the lives of the men depend on the proper selection of supplies, material and equipment. Therefore, the most rigid requirements are observed in deciding what equipment shall be used. The many outstanding advantages that gave the Maytag world leadership, enabled it to meet the exacting standards demanded by Commander Byrd.

The noteworthy tribute of being selected for the Byrd Expedition comes to the New Maytag as it is celebrating its first anniversary—the end of the most remarkable year in Maytag history—a year in which the number of Maytags in use passed the million mark.

NINE OHIOANS ARE KILLED IN AUTO CRASHES

Decrease in Week-end Toll Exact by Traffic.

MANY INJURED

Four Persons Die on Crossing South of Cleveland.

A marked decrease noted today in the fatality toll taken by railroad and automobile accidents over the week-end as compared with recent compilations. This was attributed to the fact that although Sunday was a typical breezy September day, low-hanging clouds and a whipping wind late in the day brought a threat of storms and served to keep many motorists at home. Among those meeting death in the 48-hour week-end period were:

Linna: Eugene Pfeiffer, 24, Huntington, Ind., killed when his racing car threw a tire and overturned.

Columbus: Mrs. May Arnold, 38, died of a fractured skull sustained in head-on automobile collision. Five others seriously injured.

Fatal Crash Near Bedford
AKRON, Sept. 24.—Four people were dead here today, victims of a last night when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train.

The dead are: Samuel Bensinger, Jr., 19, who was driving; Miss Bernice Camp, Harold A. Diehl and Miss Flossie Springfield, all of Akron.

The tragedy occurred at Ward's crossing just south of Bedford, and the driver apparently failed to heed the red danger signal at that point. The locomotive struck it with a terrific crash throwing the car high into the air, according to observers. The bodies were badly mangled.

Cleveland: Bruno Ospanvitch, 57, killed when hit by an automobile.

Miss Nellie Taylor, 45, killed when she walked from between two parked cars into the path of another machine.

West Jefferson: Kathleen Barnett, 14-month-old infant, killed when automobile in which she was riding was forced into roadside ditch.

Collision Near Briggsdale
COLUMBUS, Sept. 24.—One dead and five other persons in a critical condition at Mt. Carmel hospital here today was the toll taken in a head-on collision near Briggsdale late last night.

Mrs. May Arnold, 38, Columbus, died of a fractured skull soon after she was brought to the hospital. Her daughter, Marie Fugate, 19; Harry Doty, 45, and his nephew, Edward L. Scoles, 25, driver of the car in which the two women were riding sustained fractured skulls, and were taken to the hospital where attaches today reported their condition as critical.

Arthur Douglas, 32, driver of the other car, suffered a broken left leg and head injuries. His companion, Mrs. Ludia Broiler, 50, suffered several broken ribs, broken shoulder, a crushed chest and a possible skull fracture.

Both automobiles were demolished.

ASKS $25,000 IN RUM DEATH

CHILLICOTHE, O., Sept. 24.—Ascribing responsibility for the death of Herbert Davis, 63, Potts Hill farmer, who died of acute alcoholism on Sept. 14, to Lowe Thompson and Robert Ambrose, Morris, Milledgeville, Mrs. Clara Davis, the widow today had filed suit in common pleas court here naming Thompson and Morris as defendants and asking $25,000 damages.

Mrs. Davis alleged the defendants "wifely, carelessly and unlawfully" furnished her husband intoxicating liquor "of such ingredients and quantity" and "induced him to drink, thereby causing his death." Answering warrants charging possession and furnishing of liquor, Thompson and Morris came here and pleaded not guilty. They were released under $1,000 bond.

DONAHEY FREES OHIO EMBEZZLER

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—Governor Vic Donahey today commuted the 7-to-10-year sentence of Louis W. Josephson, Columbus, so as to permit his release from Ohio penitentiary on October 1, next. Convicted of embezzling funds from the Ohio Industrial Endowment company, of this city, Josephson was received at the big state prison June 23, 1926.

The governor's act of executive clemency, it was explained, was based upon the assertion that Josephson was in "imminent danger of death," and upon recommendations of the trial judge and prosecutor, as well as prison officials, that Josephson be liberated.

KIDNAPED UNION AGENT RELEASED

DETROIT, Sept. 24.—Three men, alleged kidnapers of Max Ruben, business agent of the Motion Picture Operators' union, were under arrest today and Ruben was safely home following a raid yesterday in Toledo.

Those under arrest are: Peter Mason, said to be a former associate of Paul Jaworski; Joe "One Eye" Culbertson, a suspect in Toledo's $100,000 express robbery; and Bill W. Warden of Toledo.

An agreement was reached by union officials and the kidnapers, police charge, whereby Ruben was to be set free without ransom. After Ruben's release, witnesses who were to go to Toledo to identify the prisoners disappeared.

FIND TOTS ALIVE IN FIRE RUINS

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Firemen searching the ruins of the fire wrecked Novedades theatre in Madrid found several children alive buried beneath a mountain of debris, said a Madrid dispatch to the Evening News. They had apparently been saved by the fact that other bodies, lying above them, had prevented them from being crushed to death.

LAUNCH "SOLID SOUTH" FIGHT

New York Educators Hit "One-party Status."

By Lawrence Sullivan.
NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A nationwide drive to end permanently the "one-party status" of the solid south was launched here today by an influential group of New York business men, lawyers, doctors, financiers and educators of southern origin.

Tracing the tremendous economic and social development of the southern states in the last 25 years, the keynote of the new movement declared that "the coming presidential election gives the south a splendid opportunity to throw off an incubus which has made it impotent politically for more than 60 years."

"Notwithstanding evidences of improvement," the statement said, "there remains the habit of political solidarity which prevents the southern voter from seeing his political activities in relation to his own well-being."

"The present presidential election offers the south a god-given opportunity to pull itself out of this political slough. For the first time in our memory, the Republican party has realized that it is worth its while to bother about the south."

A direct formal challenge of 12 statements in Governor Alfred E. Smith's Denver water-power speech Saturday night was issued today by Stephen Davis, director of the joint committee of National Utility associations. Davis, who was formerly counsel for the department of commerce under Herbert Hoover, declared that Governor Smith's attack in Denver upon the electric utilities information service contained "so many misstatements of fact that it is inconceivable that it was based upon any personal inquiry."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Strength and activity of the oils and coppers featured an otherwise dull and irregular market in the first period today. The rails and motors were under liquidation, attributed partly to the withdrawal of traders in observance of an important religious holiday. There was no great change in the money market situation and the call loan rate started the new week at 7 1/2 per cent.

Bulls in the oil stocks were confident of a steady improvement in the industry, looking particularly to 1929 as the most prosperous year for the refiners and marketers of petroleum products since 1925. Atlantic Refining continued its spectacular advance to 194 1/2 up 5 points for the day and nearly 100 points from the low of the year. The low-priced Standard Oils moved up fractionally in active trading.

The copper stocks had the benefit of an excellent market for 15 1/2 cent copper metal, with most of the producers predicting a 15 1/2-cent market by the middle of October. Anaconda moved forward about 3 points to a new high above 84; Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and other well known copper shares were well bought a point or two higher. The buying movement in United States steel common was promptly resumed at the beginning of trading today, the stock advancing more than a point to 159 1/4, independent steels were inactive and steady.

GOV. AL SMITH ON OFFENSIVE IN NORTHWEST

Democratic Nominee on His Way to Helena.

SPEAKS TONIGHT

Candidate Plans Slashing Attack on Oil Scandals.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.
BILLINGS, Mont., Sept. 24.—Several thousand Montanans greeted Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, on his first stop in the treasurer state, at Billings, at 9:35 this morning.

A band was tooting the inevitable "Sidewalks of New York" when the train pulled in.

Governor Smith descended to the lower step on the rear end of his car, waved his brown derby and shook hundreds of hands as the people filed past. He made no speech.

CASPER, Wyo., Sept. 24.—Enroute with Governor Smith to Helena, Mont., Governor Smith invaded the north-west territory today definitely on the offensive.

The defense phase of his campaign is behind him at the end of his first week on the road. From now on until the sixth of November the Democratic nominee's campaign is to be a slashing aggressive attack on the opposition with which will be coupled a clear exposition of his own ideas on the issues.

Tonight in the capital of Montana, a state which the Democrats appear very confident of carrying this year, Governor Smith will tear into the record of the Harding-Coolidge administration of the last eight years with particular reference to the oil and other scandals.

Nominee is Confident.
His theme will be "party responsibility," a phrase appropriated from a statement made by his Republican opponent in Washington last week. The burden of his speech will be that political parties are responsible for their acts when in control of the machinery of government, and that such being the case Mr. Hoover must bear his share of responsibility for the eight years' record, the more so because he was a cabinet officer in the two administrations.

Today marked the end of the first week of Governor Smith's active campaign for the presidency. It found him confident, pleased with his reception in the west, and well satisfied with the general outlook.

Since leaving Albany a week ago this morning Governor Smith has visited five states west of the Mississippi river. Montana is the sixth. In all save one, Kansas, the Smith managers believe they have a fifty-fifty chance, if not better, of victory in November, and, paradoxically enough, the crowds, that greeted Governor Smith seemed greater in Kansas, comparatively speaking, than in the other states. He made no speech in Kansas, yet at every one of the 15 stops he made in the state the size of the crowds was the subject of widespread comment.

Single Issue in Each Speech.
The subjects which Governor Smith will deal with in his Minneapolis and Milwaukee addresses have not been announced, but it is thought probable that in Milwaukee he will deal with prohibition.

The governor is following a well-defined plan of dealing with a single issue in each speech. In Omaha it was relief, in Oklahoma City religious intolerance, in Denver water power, in Helena the Republican record of the last eight years. He plans to continue his policy throughout the campaign.

While Governor Smith is winging through the west on the present trip, the Democratic managers in New York are laying out plans for the rest of the campaign. Governor Smith will return to Albany Tuesday night of next week. He probably will rest for the remainder of the week and start another tour on Sunday or Monday.

NEW DEMAND MADE IN KIDNAPING

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—A new demand for $5,000 threatening bombing and death if the money is not paid was received here today by A. Frank Ranieri, father of 10-year-old Billy Ranieri, who was kidnaped and held for 13 days by Mafia extortionists.

The letter was received by Ranieri through the regular mails just as Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Hoffman and Charles Mueller were preparing to go before the grand jury to ask the indictment of Angelo Pettit, alleged ringleader of the plot to obtain $60,000 ransom for Billy.

INFLUENZA HITS HURRICANE ZONE

SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO, Sept. 24.—Influenza has added its terrors to fever in the refugee camps of the storm sufferers. It was estimated today that more than 15,000 are either suffering from influenza or are threatened with it.

Tents which were brought here from New York upon the United States army transport Bridge are being converted into field hospitals.

Owing to tainted water in all districts of the storm zone it is feared that malaria will break out.

Geneva Meet Adjourns Tomorrow.
GENEVA, Sept. 24.—The ninth meeting of the League of Nations assembly will adjourn tomorrow, according to present plans. The delegates of the powers are hopeful that the United States will express the official viewpoint upon the Anglo-French naval agreement before the session ends.

TODAY

In her little handbag, had recently held up Mr. Brumberger's poker game in New York.

"They ought to let me go," says the little lady, "it's the first time." The theory that a dog's first bite, a young lady's first expedition with murder involved, should go unpunished needs discouraging.

EVEN British newspapers are amazed at the revelations concerning the naval agreement between France and England, calling it "a combination aimed at the United States." The London Daily News says the arrangement would "give Britain unlimited small cruisers, and France unlimited small submarines, but gives America nothing she wanted."

BRITISH and French knowing that airplanes make big battleships useless, adopt an intelligent program.

Cleveland would say to Britain and France, "We shall do as we damn please. You do as you please," and Britain would know he meant it, remembering Chile.

President Coolidge doesn't use such language, but he might well say, "I do not choose to have Europe regulate this country."

RUSSIA, possessing brains, courage and the enthusiasm of revolution, a combination that helped this country in 1776, knows how to deal with Western Europe.

Voroshilov, Russia's war commissar, warns "Capitalist Europe" that Russia is spending great sums on an army, equal in efficiency, exceeding in numbers any other army, and intends to improve the "fighting capacity of the red army."

Europe hearing that will let Russia alone.

Russia needs a great army, we don't. We need a great flying fleet, and submarine fleet. We haven't either. Our statement, Hank that if you kiss the Europeans, HARD ENOUGH, on each cheek, that will take care of the future. It won't. The Russians have brains.

A VIENNESE chemist, Alois Fischer, produces a radium alloy, platinum and radium, enormously enhancing radium efficiency in cancer treatment. The results are said to be astounding, smaller quantities of radium are required. Another important step taken toward conquest of cancer.

NEWSPAPER publishers will learn, with a dry eye, that Canadian paper companies have been unable to agree on reducing their output, face a newspaper "glut." Working 78 per cent of capacity, Canadian mills turned out more than 200,000 tons of newsprint in August. That should help deserving United States publishers.

GERMANY may invite our learned young financier, Owen B. Young, to redraft the Dawes plan.

Haven't Americans done enough drafting and redrafting for Europe? Why not let Europeans do their own planning, taxing, robbing, etc.? Must the country be a permanent cat's paw to pull chestnuts out of the German fire, for the allied beneficiaries?

FOUR DIE, THREE HURT IN CRASH

YPSILANTI, Mich., Sept. 24.—Four persons are dead and three others are injured today following a crash between an interurban car and an automobile near here.

The dead: Pansy Cox, Mrs. Lena Lane and two of her children, David, 2, and Ruth, 3. Two other Lane children were slightly injured and Clifford Winters, driver of the car, was seriously injured.

GIRL FIGHTS OFF PAYROLL BANDITS

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Blinded by Red Pepper hurled into her eyes as she was passing by a bus company, Mrs. Francis Wood, cashier, fought off bandits who attempted to seize the money contained in a satchel. She screamed and the bandits fled without the money.

Even when taken to an operating table where physicians tried to neutralize the pepper in her eyes, Mrs. Wood kept tight hold of the money satchel.

L. L. Shaw, Daisy alley, was fined $150 and costs. His place yielded a stock of beer and whisky when it was visited by Chief McDermott and Patrolmen Berger, Roth, Shenkel, Smith and Richards. He was jailed in default of payment.

Ebert Shaw, who was also arrested, was dismissed.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM SLAGER, MRS. ADELLA CRONIN AND DAUGHTERS, ARMA AND RUTH.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt Hits Gov. Smith, Charging he "Hides Behind Religious Issue"

Assistant Attorney General Speaks at Methodist Episcopal Conference in Lorain, Then Goes to Warren.

LORAIN, O., Sept. 24.—After bitterly assailing Gov. Alfred E. Smith for "hiding behind the religious issue," in her speech here last night, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States, today prepared to continue her stumping campaign with an address before the Westminister Men's club, a Presbyterian laymen's organization at Warren. She is to talk there tonight. Apparently unperturbed by reports that Republican leaders disapprove of her program of attacking Smith before Protestant church groups, Mrs. Willebrandt delivered her scheduled talk here last night before the North-East Ohio Methodist Episcopal church conference, and hit back sharply at Gov. Smith for his Oklahoma speech in which he charged her with injecting religious prejudice into the campaign.

Lauds Senator Walsh.
"If a Catholic like Senator Thomas J. Walsh or any other constitutionally serving, loyal Catholic had been nominated no such stand would have been taken by him as Gov. Smith did in bolting the party platform," Mrs. Willebrandt asserted, referring to the prohibition issue. "The Methodist ministers would not have needed to bother to take a stand and my speech would have been unnecessary."

Here Mrs. Willebrandt referred to her address before the Ohio Methodist conference at Springfield, recently, when her attack on Smith brought his answering charges at Oklahoma City.

"There are hundreds—thousands of Catholics," she continued, "who because of the moral issue involved, are going to vote against Smith and I am proud to stand beside them."

Assails Stand on Dry Law.
She characterized Gov. Smith as "the greatest force for disregard of the prohibition laws in America today," and charged that he brought his accusations of religious prejudice against her at Oklahoma City because he was "afraid to come out and defend his record and a champion of the liquor traffic."

"My attack on Gov. Smith at Springfield and tonight had not a thing to do with his religion, and he knows it and I know it," the woman prosecutor asserted.

Her talk was delivered before a packed auditorium. Practically all of the visiting ministers of the North-East Ohio Methodist conference attended, as well as many outsiders. Mrs. Willebrandt was loudly applauded and on several occasions her listeners rose and cheered.

Bishop Henderson's Statement.
Bishop Theodore Henderson, head of the conference, said that while he was willing that Methodists should act as "shock troops of prohibition," he did not want anyone to gain the impression that Mrs. Willebrandt had been brought to Ohio to stir up religious intolerance.

Mrs. Willebrandt charged that "in 1923 Gov. Smith said he'd love to blow the foam off a mug of beer and put his foot on a brass rail again. But when he was nominated as Democratic candidate he said he was and always had been opposed to the saloon."

She also gave a strong prohibition talk and predicted that the election would be decided this year by "simple, law-abiding folks who live in unostentatious obedience of the Eighteenth amendment like our own President Coolidge."

Recall Publication Material.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Without signifying its approval or disapproval, the Republican national committee today recalled its publicity material on an address delivered by Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States, in Lorain, O., last night. Speaking before an audience of Methodist ministers she again demanded they vote against Governor Smith for president.

OHIOAN, BROKE, JAILED AFTER GRABBING PURSE TO FILL "DATE"

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—With only 90 cents in his pocket and having a luncheon appointment with a girl, Charles Earle Wainwright, 19, who says he is a former Ohio State athlete, "took a chance" and grabbed the purse of Mrs. Esther Boultonchint containing $79 in cash and $100 in checks. He dashed down Broadway but two detectives pounced on him.

Wainwright said he lived at Columbus, O., and that his father was a prominent architect until he died 10 years ago.

"I went to Ohio State," he said, "and there joined a fraternity, after I had been there a year and a half we had held a dance and I drank too many orange blossoms. I was expelled."

So he came east, went broke in Philadelphia and two days ago reached New York. Then he met the girl, with whom he made the date.

QUIZ TWO MEN IN HATCHET MURDER

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 24.—Spokane police today are questioning two men, one of whom is under arrest, in connection with the brutal hatchet slaying of Mrs. Katherine Clark, 36, body was found Sunday afternoon at the old Davis fortress near Foothills, a small mining town, 15 miles from this city.

The body was discovered by F. C. Winklepleck and Grover C. Tyred, Spokane fruit pickers, when they went to get a drink. From all appearances the body had been dragged from some distance before it was dropped, a bloody heap, in the undergrowth. A bloodstained shingler's hatchet, found nearby, gave silent testimony as to the manner in which the woman had been slain.

JURORS PROBE "HIKER" SHOOTING

AKRON, O., Sept. 24.—The Summit county grand jury today was to hear second degree murder charges against Lovada Boyle, 8-year-old divorcee, of Oil City, Pa., who fatally wounded Robert McCormick, 31, Akron automobile salesman.

Miss Boyle shot McCormick when he made improper advances, she charges, after she had been picked up in an automobile occupied by him and another man while "hitch-hiking" her way from Okmulgee, Okla., to her home in Oil City. She pleaded not guilty to the second degree murder charge when arraigned in municipal court here Saturday.

She has been released from the county jail, without bond, and given over to the custody of Miss Greta Footman.

American capital may be invested in new homes for workers in France.

High Gridders Defeated By Strong Canton Eleven In Opener

GIVE WAY AT GAME'S END AFTER SCORELESS FIRST-HALF BATTLE

Locals Forced to Resort to Passing Game Against Husky McKinley Squad; Victors Use Line Smashing Drives.

FIGHTING against weight odds that exacted their price in a grueling struggle at Lakeside stadium, Canton, East Liverpool's high school footballers, mighty courageous, brave and unflinching in the face of an opening game assignment that, candidly, was just too tough for them, Saturday held the McKinley stalwarts scoreless for two periods, slipped just enough for the home guard to shove over a single touchdown in the third and then, battered by a bruising line ramming attack, were forced to bow their heads at the close of the final quarter in a four touchdown defeat. The score was 26 to 0.

Genevich and Haines Look Good

Giant, Card Hurlers Come Through With Victories.

By Les Conklin.
NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Joe Genevich of the Giants and Jess Haines of the Cardinals, who weren't considered good enough to work in any of the three games between the National league contenders last week, may be the best bet of the race. Genevich yielded only five hits in winning a 14-inning duel from Laque of Cincinnati yesterday by a score of 2 to 1, and Haines held Brooklyn to three singles as the Cards rolled up a 7 to 1 victory.

Genevich was never in danger except in the seventh inning when Joe Stripp eluded the first home run in his big league career, and in the ninth when a long and accurate throw to the home plate by Jimmy Welsh in deep center cut off a run. Singles by Lindstrom, Terry and Jackson broke up the game.

Only 31 batters faced Haines, who is winding up the season with a long winning streak. Bottomley's homer off Petty with two on base featured Sunny Jim and Hack Wilson are now tied in the National league home run marathon with thirty circuit clouts apiece.

Hoyt Blanks Cleveland.
Walter Hoyt of the Yankees also turned in a brilliant performance in whitewashing Cleveland, 5 to 0. He allowed but four singles, while murderers' row nipped Joe Shauter for eleven hits, five of which were for extra bases.

The Athletics also went on a batting spree and outslugged St. Louis, 11 to 7, thus remaining two games behind New York. The A's collected 16 hits, including homers by Hauser, Hykes and Fox.

Heinie Manush of the Browns walked four hits and took the league batting leadership away from Goslin of Washington. The Goose got two hits as the White Sox trimmed the Nats, 8 to 3, and tied them for fourth place.

Phil Page, Springfield, Mass., southpaw, registered his second straight victory in the big show by latching Detroit to a 4 to 1 win over Boston.

Won't Face Petty Again.
The Cards' defeat of Petty yesterday also was heartening to their immediate prospects, since it isn't likely that they will have to do business with the star left hander again in this series. At that, it might be a break for them if they did bring Petty back for another war. During the five innings he worked yesterday, he was almost as mystifying as McGuffey's third reader.

They have beaten Vance, too, almost every time out this year, but the tip is that they won't have to do it again. The young man, according to the best advice, watches a very good ball game from the bench against any club he thinks he won't beat.

The only man the cards respect is McWeeny, who has beaten them three times in four starts this year. With one game already parked well out of traffic, the Cards, therefore, figure to take two of the next three.

This pace will keep the Giants buck jumping against the Reds on the other side of the river. However, they got a break, too, in beating Luque yesterday. He went 14 innings in order to lose, which means he won't be back. The Giants also are managing to conceal their misgivings over the fact that the Reds are there with a more or less silly looking line up.

Salem's Aerial Attack Beats Louisville

Red Passes Way to 35-13 Victory in Opener.

SALEM, Sept. 24.—Displaying a powerful forward pass and end running offensive and taking advantage of the breaks at opportune times, Salem high won over Louisville at Rellly stadium, 35 to 13, Saturday.

Salem scored twice in the first five minutes. Louisville kicked off to Sidinger, who returned the ball 20 yards to midfield. On the first play, Sidinger threw a long pass to Inert, who ran to the nine yard line. Smith took it over in two line bucks. Sidinger dropped the extra point. Louisville received and on an exchange of punts, Warren Smith fumbled, Yates, Salem left end, recovering on the 12-yard line. Konert scored on the next play and Sidinger dropped the point.

Louisville scored just before time for the quarter was called. W. Smith heaving a long pass to Dickerhoof, who ran 40 yards for a touchdown. Smith scored the only other Louisville touchdown after Whinnery fumbled. Louisville recovering on Salem's 20 yard line. Three plays netted nothing, but Smith dashed around left end on the fourth for 20 yards and the score.

Salem scored twice in the third quarter and once in the fourth. Menster of Louisville got away for a 50-yard run in the last quarter around left end.

Smith, Louisville captain, was the outstanding player of the game. Sidinger, Konert, Corso, Scullion and Guilford shared Salem honors. Each team had nine first downs, Salem showed powerful offensive but was only fair on defensive. Louisville playing best on line rushes. Salem tackling was poor while defense on passes was far below par. Sidinger punted for average of 50 yards.

Just after the final period started, McKinley scored its second touchdown, chiefly by line plays.

A forward pass, Lab to Ferrall, for 30 yards, followed by a 15-yard run, produced the third Canton marker and Zagray's line plunging the fourth. McKinley 27. E. Liverpool 0.

CINCINNATI'S SANDLOT KINGS

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 24.—With the toga of the 1928 class A sandlot championship in their possession, the Cincinnati New Eras today proudly contemplated a new record—that of being the only team to go through a National Baseball Federation tournament undefeated. Cincinnati won the distinction by taking both games of a double-header here yesterday from Detroit, 7 to 5 and 13 to 0.

The two teams, sole survivors of a list of 18 which took up the elimination grind over a week ago, went into a three game series Saturday with Cincinnati carrying off the honors in that session to a tune of 5 to 3.

INDIANAPOLIS LANDS PENNANT

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The Rochester Red Wings will meet the Indianapolis club, which clinched the American association pennant by defeating Toledo yesterday in the first game of the "little world series" here on Wednesday. Rochester won the International league flag by taking two games from Montreal in the latter city yesterday even though Buffalo, the runner-up, defeated Toronto. The first four games in the series will be played here. The first team to win five games will capture the inter-league title. The first game in Indianapolis will be played either on Oct. 2 or 3.

This is Rochester's first pennant in 17 years.

HOLY NAME PLAYS SCORELESS TIE

Cleveland Holy Name high school, East Liverpool high's grid foe here Saturday, played West high, Cleveland, to a scoreless tie Saturday afternoon on West Tech field.

Fumbles throughout the game cost both teams possible scoring opportunities. West was the strongest in the first period, getting the ball in Holy Name's 20 yard line territory. They lacked the snap to put the ball over.

After making three first downs in the third quarter, Holy Name was held on the eighteen yard line by West. As a last resort in the final period, West resorted to an aerial attack.

Marty Gibbons and Jack Lynch played best for Holy Name, while Gerraty and Pempin did the heavy work for West.

M. Cebula, James Duel On Hilltop

Chester Noses Out Motors in First Game of Series.

WITH Mike Cebula from the Columbia club of the South Atlantic league chucking 'em in for Chester and Charley James, of the Jeannette Mid-Atlantic loop club, hurling for Turk Nash, the second game of the all-star series between the two clubs will be fought out Wednesday night at Smith field, Chester, the West Virginians hold the edge as a result of their 3 to 2 victory over the Motors in Saturday's opener.

The rivals were slated to go into action again tonight on the Chester lot, but the unseasonably bold weather which has a tendency to grow thumbs where fingers ought to be has forced the postponement.

Cebula and James will make return appearances in the Wednesday clash. James went the route, a full nine innings, but Cebula forsook the hilltop at the end of the fifth, with a sore arm developing, and went to the outfield.

Until then, Mike had held the visitors hitless and fanned nine. In finishing the contest, Springer allowed but one bingle, that by Tommy Sayre, although a couple of walks he issued, together with an infield walk, aided the visitors in the production of a pair of counters, one short of knotting the count.

James turned in a very natty slab performance for the Motors, allowing but six hits and fanning eight Chester swatters. Two of the six hits were bunched for one run while the two other Chester markers were aided by looseness in the Turk Nash defenses.

Chester Starts Scoring.
The Riley forces broke into the scoring column in the fifth, scoring a run on George Cebula's infield single and Mike's triple to right.

The Motors scored their only runs in the sixth. Hunselman drew a walk and went to second when James was nipped by a pitched ball. James was trapped off the bag by Springer and Godwin fanned for the second out. Sayres singled through second, Hunselman moving on to third. McMath walked to fill the sacks and both Hunselman and Sayre scored when Crandall fumbled Bayley's roller to first.

The West Virginians sewed up the game in the ninth. Pete Cebula got off with a walk, took second on a passed ball and scored on Campbell's single over third. Campbell moved up to second on the throw-in and scored the winning counter when Hunselman's throw got past Watson at third.

Aside from the pitching of James and Cebula, bright spots in the contest included Mike's hitting and McConnell's catch of McMath's hard drive in the fourth.

POSSIBILITIES IN FLAG RACES

The Yankees, still two games ahead of the Athletics, can clinch the American league pennant by winning five of their seven remaining games, even if Philadelphia should make a clean sweep. If the Yanks capture four out of seven, the A's will have to win all of their six remaining contests to pass them. Both teams won yesterday. The standing:

New York.....	96	51	.635	7
Philadelphia.....	94	53	.639	6
St. Louis and New York both won in the National league yesterday while Chicago was idle. The Cardinals remain one game ahead of the Giants, while the Cubs are now 3 1/2 games behind New York and 4 1/2 games behind the Cardinals. The standing:

Giants, A's Have Only a Week Now to Catch Up With Rivals

Two Leaders in Each League Win But Yanks and Cards Gain in Time; Season Ends Next Sunday.

By Davis A. Walsh.
NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—With pennant contenders operating on four distinct fronts, this adaptable correspondent submitted himself to the famous blind fold test today and shrewdly divined the following, after a brief but meditative silence: The Giants win the ball game; the Cardinals win the ball game; the Yankees win the ball game; the Athletics win the ball game.

Nothing gained, nothing lost would seem to be the correct rejoinder here but the man who makes it will be wrong on both counts. The Yanks still are two games ahead of the Athletics in the American league and the Cardinals retain their one-game jump on the Giants in the National league but, with the major league season ending on Sunday next, days count almost as much as games at this particular moment. The Cards and Yanks gained a full day and the Giants and Athletics lost exactly that by reason of yesterday's stand-off in both leagues. Thus, instead of being two games ahead with eight to play, as they were 24 hours ago, the Yankees still have the two games but the contending Athletics no longer have the eight-game margin on which to figure. It is seven now. So is that of the Cards, where yesterday it was eight.

Romance in New York

By GILBERT ROGERS

Jerry's boss—the man who had given Jerry his job—Adrian Martin, Adrian Martin with his millions, Jerry with his pitance! To do something for the man you love, to ask a favor as a woman, to have that secret surprise waiting for Jerry when he came back! And all at once she was a thousand times more interested in Adrian Martin than she had ever dreamed of being.

"Wait! Don't go. I want to ask you something. About—about Mr. Evesham."

He slowly shook his head. "I refuse to stay here any longer. I asked you to come home with me, and you turned me down. The offer is still open."

His smile was inscrutable. For a breathless instant he hesitated. To do something for Jerry, to get a perfectly splendid job for him—a just by being agreeable for an hour! And after all, she wasn't afraid, and no harm would come of it. As he said, he wanted to show her how mild he could be. Impulses—impulses driving you this way, and that—but they made you live, they made things happen!

She gave him a quick, answering smile. "Very well," she said.

She bowed to Mrs. Drake, an old, wearied dragon of a woman fighting hard to hold her place at the first field-marshal of American society. As for Carlotta, there was no sign of her, and if Carlotta, with her varied moods, were having a good time, she had probably forgotten at this moment that Sally existed.

Adrian Martin and she went down the flight of steps that led to the iron gates. Footmen came forward, the rages swung, a big blue car drove softly up, and she had settled herself back in its roomy dimness.

Now it did seem to her she had done a foolish thing, for away from the lights and the crowd and the music, the heavy sardonic man looting at her side seemed more formidable, less to be believed. But he couldn't hurt her—ridiculous, to be afraid to go to his house, and chat for half an hour! He wouldn't listen to her under any other conditions, and in half an hour she felt she could, by asking ever so discreetly, better Jerry's position ten times.

The house was English renaissance. It sprawled long and low with multicolored windows and stained wainscoting, a magnificent house, too big for any bachelor. He guided her in an old room hung with tapestries and armor and big iron lanterns, a room like a king's dungeon, she thought.

Now that they were here, he looked really indifferent, almost as if he wished she hadn't come. To interest Adrian Martin—that was the task Dan Shevlin had set for her! To interest a man who had had everything and wanted nothing, who was so wise about the world that he was not even curious.

However, he drummed up a dry humor for her benefit. "We'd better have a champagne—Isn't that the thing you expected? Alone, with a notorious man, drinking champagne at the dead of night. Oh my, oh my!" He held up his hands and pretended horror.

A servant appeared. The champagne was poured. He filled the glasses, touched hers. "To my speedy reformation. . . . What the deuce?"

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

"What gentleman?"

"Mr. Evesham. Just arrived from New York."

"Send him in!"

Sally had leapt to her feet, her panic in her eyes. "Oh, let me go—don't let him in here—it will be difficult to explain. He might not understand. You see—"

Adrian Martin looked at her whimsically. Her fly-ing glance lighted upon a screen of Spanish leather in the far corner.

"I don't want him to see me here!" she explained. One impulse had led to another. She slipped over to the corner, and hid. Then she wished she hadn't. She should have stayed where she was. But there were things you couldn't explain. And this joke would look like grim earnest to any one else—to Jerry. She wished a thousand times over she hadn't done this thing. She was trying hard not to breathe as Jerry came into the room.

CHAPTER 20.

The leather screen guarded the dark corner where Sally crouched. Why had she hidden, she asked herself fiercely. It was lying to Jerry—she'd tell him—tell him sometime when he'd understand. Only now she mustn't be discovered—for now it would look like guilt indeed.

What a mess she had made of things! Coming here, like this, with the wild hope of persuading Adrian Martin to do something for Jerry. She could hear their voices, low-pitched, scarcely audible across the distance of the long room.

"South America . . . the mine . . . Gonzales says . . . the man's crazy . . . you'd better see him at once . . . Phrases and bits of phrases now and then reached her ears, as Martin raised his voice, or Jerry spoke more clearly.

"Then I'll go down again—right away." It was Jerry's voice. "Only I've got to have a better contract this time."

"Suppose you handle the situation first. We'll talk about contracts afterwards."

A pause. "All right. Six months—I can settle it in six months." Then a long silence, broken only by the sound of footsteps as if someone were walking up and down, thinking. The footsteps came nearer, receded, came nearer again.

Sally held her breath, lowered her head, as Jerry passed in front of the screen, his hands in his pockets, thinking hard. He turned on his heel, stopped, looked . . . There was a horrible second.

Not a word from him, yet the air held his accusation, his stare of bitter astonishment. With a little shiver, Sally rose and walked out.

She met his eyes. "I—I" she began. But she could not go on, could not face that terrible, blazing look. She stood helplessly. Adrian Martin, in a deep wing chair, glanced on with eyes of cynical amusement.

"Tell him," she begged, "please tell him . . ."

But Jerry made one angry movement. "Sorry to have walked in on you at this moment!" he said harshly. "Wouldn't have taken up your time. Good night."

Sally tried to call to him, tried to halt him, but her voice had deserted her. She stood there, sick and despairing, hearing the outer door close on its massive hinges like the knell of her fate.

"Jerry," she was trying to say to him, "Jerry, I only wanted to help you, to do something for you . . ." But those were unspoken words, and he was not there had she been able to say them. Sally's dismay rose in sudden fury against Adrian Martin, who could sit there and smile, smile with keen relish at her distress.

"Oh I—I loathe you!" she exclaimed. "You don't know what you've done. I—I tell you . . ."

Hysteria—it trembled to the surface. And a look of intense annoyance crossed Martin's face. He rose slowly. There was a suggestion of power about the way he moved, a look dark and sinister in his eyes, so that the words died in her. A man who was capable of anything—she knew that now. Under his sleepy pretense there lurked something frightening and ruthless, as Carlotta had hinted.

But his voice was as quiet as ever. "I rather think the place for you is home. You'll find my chauffeur outside."

She caught up her evening cape and sped past him. She was scarcely conscious of stepping into the car, rolling up to Mrs. Brooke's driveway. She only knew that as she lay in bed at last she could not sleep.

Over and over she argued, pleaded, explained to Jerry, lying there, wide-eyed, in the darkness. He had been cruel, unfair not to trust her! And yet he didn't understand. How could she really blame him? To be found hiding, alone at night in Adrian Martin's house—oh, it wasn't going to be easy to explain the mood in which she had done that! But she would explain, she would convince him. Tomorrow when he called on . . . Because of course he would call on her. She would see him, tell him the truth. If he loved her, he'd believe her. She could tell if he loved her now. But why had it happened anyway?

It Never Pays

Romance in New York

By GILBERT ROGERS

Jerry's boss—the man who had given Jerry his job—Adrian Martin! Adrian Martin with his millions, Jerry with his pittance! To do something for the man you love, to ask a favor as a woman, to have that secret surprise waiting for Jerry when he came back! And all at once she was a thousand times more interested in Adrian Martin than she had ever dreamed of being.

"Wait! Don't go. I want to ask you something. About—about Mr. Evesham."

He slowly shook his head. "I refuse to stay here any longer. I asked you to come home with me, and you turned me down. The offer is still open."

His smile was inscrutable. For a breathless instant she hesitated. To do something for Jerry, to get a perfectly splendid job for him, to be just by being agreeable for a hour! And after all, she wasn't afraid, and no harm would come of it. As he said, he wanted to show her how mild he could be. Impulses—impulses driving you this way, and that—but they made you live, they made things happen!

She gave him a quick, answering smile. "Very well," she said.

She bowed to Mrs. Drake, an old, weary dragon of a woman fighting hard to hold her place at the first field-marshal of American society. As for Carlotta, there was no sign of her, and if Carlotta, with her varied moods, were having a good time, she had probably forgotten at this moment that Sally existed.

Adrian Martin and she went down the flight of steps that led to the iron gates. Footmen came forward, the gates swung, a big blue car drove softly up, and she had settled herself back in its roomy dimness.

Now it did seem to her she had done a foolish thing, far away from the lights and the crowd and the music, the heavy sardonic man loitering at her side seemed more formidable, less to be believed. But he couldn't hurt her—ridiculous, to be afraid to go to his house, and that for half an hour! He wouldn't listen to her under any other conditions, and in half an hour she felt she could, by asking ever so closely, better Jerry's position ten times.

The house was English renaissance. It sprawled long and low with mullioned windows and stained glass, a magnificent house, too big for any bachelor. He guided her in an old room hung with tapestries and armor and big iron lanterns, a room like a king's dungeon, she thought.

Now that they were here, he looked really indifferent, almost as if he wished she hadn't come. To interest Adrian Martin—that was the task Dan Shevlin had set for her! To interest a man who had had everything and wanted nothing, who was so wise about the world that he was not even curious.

However, he drummed up a dry humor for her benefit. "We'd better have a champagne—let's do the thing you expected? Alone, with a notorious man, drinking champagne at the dead of night. Oh my, oh my!" He held up his hands and pretended horror.

A servant appeared. The champagne was poured. He filled the glasses, touched hers. "To my speedy reformation. . . . What the deuce?"

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

"What gentleman?"

"Mr. Evesham. Just arrived from New York."

"Send him in!"

Sally had leapt to her feet, her panic in her eyes.

"Oh, let me go—don't let him in here—it will be difficult to explain. He might not understand. You see—"

Adrian Martin looked at her whimsically. Her fly-fox glance lighted upon a screen of Spanish leather in the far corner.

"I don't want him to see me here!" she explained. One impulse had led to another. She slipped over to the corner, and hid. Then she wished she hadn't. She should have stayed where she was. But there were things you couldn't explain. And this joke would look like grim earnest to any one else—to Jerry. She wished a thousand times over she hadn't done this thing. She was trying hard not to breathe as Jerry came into the room.

CHAPTER 20.

The leather screen guarded the dark corner where Sally crouched. Why had she hidden, she asked herself fiercely. It was lying to Jerry—she'd tell him—tell him sometime when he'd understand. Only now she mustn't be discovered—for now it would look like guilt indeed.

What a mess she had made of things! Coming here, like this, with the wild hope of persuading Adrian Martin to do something for Jerry. She could hear their voices, low-pitched, scarcely audible across the distance of the long room.

"South America . . . the mine . . . Gonzales says . . . the man's crazy . . . you'd better see him at once . . . Phrases and bits of phrases now and then reached her ears, as Martin raised his voice, or Jerry spoke more clearly.

"Then I'll go down again—right away." It was Jerry's voice. "Only I've got to have a better contract this time."

"Suppose you handle the situation first. We'll talk about contracts afterwards."

A pause. "All right. Six months—I can settle it in six months." Then a long silence, broken only by the sound of footsteps as if someone were walking up and down, thinking. The footsteps came nearer, receded, came nearer again.

Sally held her breath, lowered her head, as Jerry passed in front of the screen, his hands in his pockets, thinking hard. He turned on his heel, stopped, looked . . . There was a horrible second.

Not a word from him, yet the air held his accusation, his stare of bitter astonishment. With a little shiver, Sally rose and walked out.

She met his eyes. "I—I" she began. But she could not go on, could not face that terrible, blazing look. She stood helplessly. Adrian Martin, in a deep wing chair, glanced on with eyes of cynical amusement.

"Tell him," she begged, "please tell him . . ."

But Jerry made one angry movement. "Sorry to have walked in on you at this moment!" he said harshly. "Wouldn't have taken up your time. Good night."

Sally tried to call to him, tried to halt him, but her voice had deserted her. She stood there, sick and despairing, hearing the outer door close on its massive hinges like the knell of her fate.

"Jerry," she was trying to say to him, "Jerry, I only wanted to help you, to do something for you . . ." But those were unspoken words, and he was not there had she been able to say them. Sally's dismay rose in sudden fury against Adrian Martin, who could sit there and smile, smile with keen relish at her distress.

"Oh I—I loathe you!" she exclaimed. "You don't know what you've done. I—I tell you . . ."

Hysteria—it trembled to the surface. And a look of intense annoyance crossed Martin's face. He rose slowly. There was a suggestion of power about the way he moved, a look dark and sinister in his eyes, so that the words died in her. A man who was capable of anything—she knew that now. Under his sleepy pretense there lurked something frightening and ruthless, as Carlotta had hinted.

But his voice was as quiet as ever. "I rather think the place for you is home. You'll find my chauffeur outside."

She caught up her evening cane and sped past him. She was scarcely conscious of stepping into the car, rolling up to Mrs. Brooke's driveway. She only knew that as she lay in bed at last she could not sleep.

Over and over she argued, pleaded, explained to Jerry, lying there, wide-eyed, in the darkness. He had been cruel, unfair not to trust her! And yet he didn't understand. How could she really blame him? To be found hiding, alone at night in Adrian Martin's house—oh, it wasn't going to be easy to explain the mood in which she had done that! But she would explain, she would convince him. Tomorrow when he called up . . . Because of course he would call up. She would see him, tell him the truth. If he loved her, he'd believe her. She could tell if he loved her now. But why had it happened anyway?

"Wings", Epic of Air, Opens Three-Day Run

Aviation Spectacle at Ceramic Theater Depicts With Thrilling Realism What Aces Did During War.

"Wings," Paramount's wartime aviation spectacle, opened a three-day engagement today at the Ceramic theater. This screen production depicting with thrilling realism what the air aces did during the World war, provides plenty of exciting entertainment. The battle scenes show the wide stretch of the allied front and the deadly work which the air aces did in bombing the trenches and lines of the enemy by dropping bombs and swooping down like birds of prey scattering regiments and companies like acurrying rats. These scenes were made to order in an area of five square miles near Fort Sam Houston, outside San Antonio, Texas.

William Wellman, a young man who served his country in the Lafayette squadron during the war, is responsible for this epic film of the first air fighting known to mankind. Sharing the responsibility with Wellman were Lucien Hubbard, Paramount's featured supervisor, and John Monk Saunders, the author of the story. Five thousand men were used in the filming of the St. Mihiel drive. In addition to the land troops there were employed 120 airplanes, manned by the cream of the country's pilots, and scattered over the "American" and "German" armies, dropping gas and "death" bombs. The battlefield was honeycombed with 1,000 mines. The explosion of these mines simulated the laying down of a barrage to screen the oncoming Yanks. Many were the narrow escapes. In the big battle scene where one would consider there might be some casualties there was not a single one.

It is significant to note that not a foot of the picture was photographed from the ground which could conceivably be "shot" from the air. All this action was "shot" from planes, captive balloons and lofty parallels ranging from six to one hundred feet high. "WINGS" has one of the most youthful casts ever given a big production by a Hollywood producer. In it are Clara Bow, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen, Jobyna Ralston, El Brendel, "Gunboat" Smith, Gary Cooper, Hedda, Alette Marchal and Nigel de Bruiler.
